

Author's Toolbox for Bringing a Character to Life

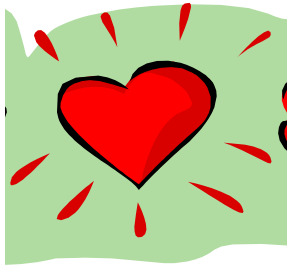

You get to know a character by what he does.

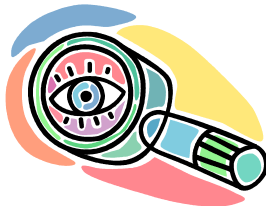

You get to know a character by what he says and what others say about him.

You get to know a character by his thoughts and what others think about him.

You get to know a character by his feelings and how others feel about him.

You get to know a character by what the author tells you about the way he looks.